Subject: What we cherish becomes our world

Good day all. For those who cherish their attachments—either in this world or the next—this becomes their world ~ the world of attachment. For those who cherish their non-attachments—this becomes their world ~ the world of non-attachment. Yet before we consider which world we desire, for in truth we can only have one ~ let us consider which world is more favorable on the scales of peace, happiness, and love.

When we attach our self to anything at all—either in this world or the next—we establish in our mind an object of attachment that can come and go and be lost and destroyed before our very eyes. We become dependent on its very existence to feel a sense of happiness and joy, and in so doing, lose our sense of power, which is our perfect equanimity of mind. This object we cherish and empower to provide us with a sense of happiness and joy is unsustainable, and completely unreliable, and without any true and lasting joy. In contrast is our determination to let go of our attachments and to have no attachments at all. Here we resign to perfect peace of mind ~ for nothing at all—either in this world or the next—can thereby be lost at all. Amen. And may you all be blessed in our Father's love and grace.
